Doug had arrived home from a long dental appointment. By the look on his face, I knew it had been an arduous time. When I asked him how he felt, he replied: "Not bad, I'm starting to defrost."

I had forgotten to buy a bottle of wine for our Christmas party. I called my neighbor to see if I could have one of his and I would replace it. He was not home but seeing that we had each other's house keys, I let myself in and chose an attractive bottle from his wine rack. The host praised my choice of wine. I managed to remove the label before we left the party. My local liquor store didn't that particular wine, so I went to a more exclusive store, which was delighted to sell me the replacement bottle – for $98. When I presented the bottle to my neighbor, I thanked him and praised his fine taste in wine. He proudly told me the bottle I had replaced contained homemade wine. He had got the bottle from a recycling bin.

Two boy scouts went on a nature hike in the hills picking hickory nuts. Along the way, they filled their small pails and then started to fill their pockets and shirts. When they could hold no more nuts, they started down the country road until they came across a cemetery. The boys decided that would be a good place to stop and rest and divide out the nuts. The two boys sat in the shade of a large oak tree and unloaded their pockets and buckets by dumping all of the nuts in a large pile.

In the process, two of them rolled away and rested near the road. The boys then proceeded to divide out the nuts. "One for you. One for me. One for you. One for me."

As they were doing this, another boy was passing by and happened to hear them. He looked into the cemetery, but could not see the boys, because they were obscured by the tree. He hesitated a moment and then ran back to town.

"Father! Father!" he yelled as he entered his house. "The cemetery. Come quick!" "What's the matter?" his father asked.

"No time to explain," the boy frantically panted. "Follow me!"

The boy and his father ran up the country road and stopped when they reached the cemetery. They stopped at the side of the road and all fell silent for a few moments. Then the father asked his son what was wrong.

"Do you hear that?" he whispered. Both people listened intently and heard the Scouts. "One for me. One for you. One for me. One for you..."

The boy then blurted out, "The devil and the Lord are dividing the souls!"

The father was skeptical but silent -- until a few moments later as the Scouts completed dividing out the nuts and one Scout said to the other, "Now, as soon as we get those two nuts down by the road, we'll have them all."

Wanting to lose weight, a woman placed a picture of a shapely, pinup model INSIDE her refrigerator to remind her of her goal. It worked like a charm as the woman discovered that she had lost ten pounds in the first month of using this method. The downside to this was that her husband spent so much time going into the fridge to look at the picture that he ended up gaining fifteen pounds!

Jean Chrétien awoke one morning to a glorious day. The sky was clear, and the sun was bright and radiant. Jean decided to walk to Parliament Hill.

As he was walking, he looked up at the sun, and said, "Mister Sun, who is de greatest Prime Minister dis country has ever had?" The sun beamed down upon Jean, and in a booming voice responded, "Jean, there is no doubt that you are the greatest Prime Minister that Canada has ever had!"

Jean's chest puffed out, and he arrived at work feeling wonderful and important. He had a marvelous day. So marvelous that he decided to walk home. The evening was as glorious as it had been the morning.

As he walked, he looked up at the setting sun and asked, "So, Mr. Sun, am I not de greatest Prime Minister Canada has ever had?"

The Sun looked down at him, and in a booming voice, responded, "Jean, you are an ASS. This country has never seen a worse Prime Minister in its entire history."

Taken aback, Jean responded, "But dis morning, you said dat I was de greatest Prime Minister dis country has ever had. Why did you change your mind?"

"Jean, this morning, I was in the East. Tonight, I'm in the West!"

A woman walked up to the manager of a department store.

"Are you hiring any help?" she asked.

"No," he said. "We already have all the staff we need."

"Then would you mind getting someone to wait on me?" she asked.

A woman worries about the future until she gets a husband.

A man never worries about the future until he gets a wife. A successful man is one who makes more money than his wife can spend.

A successful woman is one who can find such a man.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S MOTHER: "Again with the stovepipe hat?

Can't you just wear a baseball cap like the other kids?"

As my five year old son and I were headed to McDonald's one day, we passed a car accident.

Usually when we see something terrible like that, we say a prayer for those who might be hurt, so I pointed and said to my son, "We should pray."

From the back seat I heard his earnest request: "Please, God, don't let those cars block the entrance to McDonald's."

Delighted to learn that his new wallpaper was washable, Brad was furious when the very first time he washed it, it was snatched from the clothesline.

Marriage means commitment. Of course, so does insanity.

Learning from failure

You've failed many times, although you don't remember. You fell down the first time you tried to walk. You almost drowned the first time you tried to swim. . . . Don't worry about failure. . . . Worry about the chances you miss when you don't even try.
